About the Program

The Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah Child Care Assistance Program supports low-income families who work or attend school by increasing access to affordable quality child care.

Program objectives are:

- Provide financial child care assistance to low-income families.
- Increase the quality of child care through resource, referral and consumer education activities.
- Support PITU license-exempt relative providers through training and creating access to resources.

The PITU Child Care Assistance Program is funded by the Child Care Development Fund (CCDF). The CCDF is a Federal program devoted to helping low-income families work or participate in educational programs that lead to work. Child Care Development Funds are also used to serve children in protective services and a portion of CCDF funds must be used to enhance child care quality and availability. For more information on CCDF, please visit: www.acf.hhs.gov/.

Services for PITU Tribal Members and Tribal Child Care Providers

In addition to offering child care assistance to low-income families, the Child Care Program also offers the following services:

- Consumer Education: The PITU Child Care Coordinator provides resource and referral assistance to PITU Tribal members and distributes a quarterly newsletter that provides child care related information to parents and providers.
- Training and Professional Development Opportunities: PITU Child Care Providers are eligible to participate in free professional development courses. Providers can choose to attend a variety of classes. Training assistance must be pre-approved and is dependent on available funding.
- Helping PITU Child Care Providers Meet Safety Standards: Health and safety materials/equipment are offered to help child care providers meet the Tribe's minimum health and safety standards.
